HISTORY MUSEUM OF MOBILE SEEKS DIRECTOR

The Board of Directors of the History Museum of Mobile is conducting a search for a director.

This position offers an exciting opportunity to lead an institution with four campuses – the History Museum of Mobile, Africatown Heritage House, Colonial Fort Condé, and Phoenix Fire Museum – into the next phase of growth and impact. The director is responsible for the administration of the museum, including business and financial operations, programming, facility management, marketing and public relations functions, and human resources. This position is responsible for directing a curatorial vision for the museum. A successful candidate will be someone skilled in strategic planning and in building strong relationships in the community.

“The History Museum of Mobile is looking for an energetic, collaborative, and creative leader,” said Greg Reynolds, chair of the Board of Directors. “We are excited to find the next person to lead this extraordinary institution.”
